FLOOR DEBATE

February 9, 2004 LB 969

SENATOR SCHROCK: Well, generally speaking, your power companies will sell power back and forth, and there would be no cap on what they could buy or sell, I presume, as long as both parties are willing.

SENATOR HARTNETT: Okay. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Hartnett. Senator Janssen.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Thank you, Senator Cudaback. Members of the Legislature, I'm trying to catch up to speed on what is...what is happening here. And, Senator Schrock, would you answer a few questions, please?

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Schrock.

SENATOR SCHROCK: Yes, I'll answer some questions.

SENATOR JANSSEN: All right. Now we're going to be generating more power at another location, or will this allow the existing plants, power plants that are there, to generate more power? Can you answer that?

SENATOR SCHROCK: Yes, I can. Nebraska City already has a power plant there...

SENATOR JANSSEN: Right.

SENATOR SCHROCK: ...and this would allow them to approximately double the size of that plant. And because they're building at an existing plant, it's going to be cheaper to build. And because they're building a 600 megawatts instead of a 300, they will be able to generate electricity cheaper. There's about 500 coal generating facilities in the nation. Currently, the plant at Nebraska City is the third lowest cost generating coal facility in the nation, and one of plants that beats them in cost is the Gentleman plant at Sutherland.

SENATOR JANSSEN: All right. Now is this...is that an OPD
